1. BACKGROUND

In Moldova, 1 in 6 people is a young person aged 10 to 24 years (16.82% out of total population), and 1 in 11 people is an adolescent aged 10 to 19 years (10.99% out of total population)\(^1\).

Education about sexual and reproductive health and rights which contributes to healthy behaviors is indispensable preconditions to achieve the development of the potential of a person at all stages of life. Boys and girls equipped with life skills and adopting healthy and safe behaviors have more chances to excel, to make a career, and reach a higher level of material welfare. Young people can develop these skills through comprehensive sexuality education in formal and non-formal settings (in and out of schools).

In Moldova, young people learn about their sexual and reproductive health and rights, gender-based violence prevention, and other age-appropriate health information during the optional course “Health education”. The course aims to prepare boys and girls to make decisions and take positive actions to change behaviors and environments to promote health and safety and to prevent disease. However, only 10% of young people are studying this course annually. Elements of health education, including reproductive health, are taught during mandatory courses “Biology” and “Personal development”, which still remains limited. This caused serious misconceptions about gender equity and sexuality and led to risky health behaviors among young people. The undermining of the right of adolescents and youth to access the age-appropriate, rights-based information on sexual and reproductive health and rights resulted in high teenage pregnancy and abortions among youth, high incidence of STIs, including HIV. The need to diversify channels of education about Sexual and Reproductive Health and Rights among young people and reach those left behind is a necessity.

Applying innovative learning tools in formal and non-formal education, to equip young people with knowledge and complement limited school-based education is one of the main objectives of the UNFPA CO in Moldova. Over the last years, the UNFPA supported the Ministry of Education, Culture and Research in aligning the general education curricula on health-based education to the WHO & BzGA international standards and increase the quality of its provision. The availability of online/digitalized learning materials will increase the access of young people to age-appropriate information during the crisis, lockdown which leads often to distance learning.

2. THE PURPOSE

UNFPA Moldova CO is looking to contract a company for the development, design, layout, and printing of edutainment learning materials on Sexual and Reproductive Health and Rights for young people aged from 15 to 19 years.
